stop and... yeah, right.

You're too busy to stop and get lunch, forget about smelling flowers. You're busy editing mailing lists, trying to figure out the post office regulations, calculating postage, more post office regulations... oh yeah, and you have to get your mail piece designed and printed.

Phillips Printing offers superior mailing services. We have eight certified Mailpiece Quality Control Specialists on staff. Our team knows mail. You can be assured that your mailpiece will not only print well, but will reach your target market with no surprises. And, with all of our other services like design, consulting, digital printing, offset printing and fulfillment you may just have time to stop and... well, you know.

A recent survey by the United States Postal Service found that people look forward to seeing what is in their mailboxes and they spend an average of 30 minutes reading their daily mail.
